Sense of Security Ranks in Deloitte Technology’s Fast 50
... Again.

As a business, Sense of Security manages and mitigates information security risk. That is not a showy occupation, nor are those who practice it braggarts or full of excessive pride. In our composed way, though, we are delighted to announce that, for the second consecutive year, we have been ranked in the Deloitte Technology Fast 50 in recognition of our record rates of annual revenue growth.

Our growth has come about for a variety of reasons. We are very good at what we do. The companies whom we are proud to call our clients speak highly of us and of our services. Importantly, they have not suffered any adverse events since becoming Sense of Security clients.

The global financial crisis, has, perversely, been rather good to us. It has given many companies a more realistic view of the times in which we live ... and what they stand to lose should their organisational security be compromised.

Joining Deloitte’s network of high performing technology companies, along with the exposure and recognition that we have received as a Deloitte Fast 50 winner, has been instrumental to our growth over the past 12 months.

Remaining centred in a highly volatile world, we keep ahead of not just our competitors, but of those whose malicious intent creates untold grief for the unsecured each year.

Our intention is to continue to find new ways of providing an ever-more valuable service to our expanding client base, demonstrating that our rise might have been rapid, but we also possess the endurance to last the distance.

“The global financial crisis, has, perversely, been rather good to us.”
